

María de los Milagros Skansi

María de los Milagros Skansi received a Lic in Atmospheric Sciences from the University of Buenos Aires. She is working in National Meteorological Service since 1994. Some of her activities are: edition of the Climate Tendencies Bulletin and research oriented to the implementation of statistical climate models. She is currently head of climatology department. Maria is presently pursuing a Doctoral thesis about decadal variability observed and projected in the Argentine Pampas and the impact in agricultural system.